My mother helped everyone she came across without expectations or complaints. When someone needed her she was there with that smile on her face. She never expressed her pain and sorrow. She buried it deep to grow flowers for others. If you have ever met her then you know she is one of a kind. The pain of knowing she no longer walks the Earth with me hurts like a big ball of darkness. Knowing she fights no more in this world and that she rests knowing no pain, sorrow, or need gives me peace deep in the night. I know that she has transitioned and waits for us under God's tree is the light in the dark.
