I'll miss you so much sister. Truly can't believe that this happened. Can't believe your gone or come to the terms of me not ever seeing your face again. I know we're not blood sisters, but you were always my sister. Sometimes I feel like you still here. Like your just at work or something. Remember when we stayed together we would stay up all night. Remember when you stole those Pringles. Lol we was just talking about that when we stayed up until 8 doing your hair. We went to the store and Destiny was with us and I let you drive. You was so excited to get you a car and your license. These pass few weeks before we lost you I felt so much happier to have my sisters around again. To just come and hang with y'all. Laughing with you Im gone miss that. That big smile when you was like "Hey Gworl". I'm so grateful that the last thing I said to you was I love you. Right before I tried to play you about not being able to drive. You remember sis ? I'll love you forever and I'll never forget about you. Until I see you again love.

De'Asia was so different from other people I had met in my whole life. De'Asia cared about every single person who was in her life and encouraged others to chase their dreams, she was a hard worker and smart and listened to others and their problems and whenever someone was down she would ask if they were okay and needed a hug. De'Asia would change a room whenever she walked in with her smile and caring personality, De'Asia had a bright future ahead of her and she was so ready to graduate and go to college and she was so happy and I'm just so proud to have known De'Asia and call her one of my besties and may her memories live on with the lives she has touched.

DeAsia was a beautiful intelligent young woman. Many memories come to mind when I think about her. She was one of our hardest workers at mcdonalds. If Noone would come in to cover a shift DeAsia would as often as she could. She was a dedicated worker and put alot of effort in everything she did. She was loved by everyone and she knew it. You dont find many workers like her. Gone way too soon with so much potential but will always be with us through memories. My heart breaks for the family and everyone who grew to love her.
